A great international war council is to be held in the United States in the near future. The State Department has confirmed the reports that English and French commissions, headed by former Premiers Balfour and Viviani, are expected here within ten days for full discussion of the war and America's participation in it.

Assurances that the $7,000,000,000 war revenue measure will pass the House quickly and that consideration of new taxation plans for raising part of the money will begin immediately, have been given President Wilson. The bill was introduced with a favorable report by Representative Kitchin and its passage is expected today.

The President has issued a proclamation through T. W. Gregory, attorney general of the department of justice, to arrest all alien enemies who have in their possession any firearms, implements of war, ammunition, bombs or explosives, any aircraft or wireless apparatus or any form of signal device. ALL THINGS ARE READY

For the Big Tabernacle Meeting Which Will Start Sunday.

Everything is on the move around the tabernacle, setting things in order for the opening of the big Five Evangelistic Meetings, which will be launched on Sunday, with services at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Rev. Roger H. Fife, father of the Fife Brothers, an evangelist of national reputation, arrived this morning, and will open the campaign. The Fife Brothers are in a dry campaign in Havana, Illinois, at this time and the election will be held next Tuesday. They will reach Hopkinsville on Tuesday evening to take charge here. In the meantime it is most fortunate that Rev. Roger H. Fife, the father, and one of the ablest and most successful evangelists in the field, can be here to start the ball to rolling.

A chorus rehearsal will be held this evening at eight o'clock sharp. All singers who expect to take part in the music of the revival are earnestly requested to be present.

AUSTRIA AND BULGARIA WANTS PEACE

MUSIC AND MERE MUSES

Made Up a Program of Fun and Pleasure Thursday Evening.

PUBLIC LIBRARY BENEFIT

Fair Crowd Present Despite the Rain and Wind in In Early Evening.

A hard rain about 7 o'clock made a gloomy outlook for the library benefit Thursday evening, but though the weather was still threatening, a fair crowd attended the Tabernacle performance and spent an "Evening With the Muses." The five members of the Atheneum, who volunteered to "do stunts" were seated in the center of the stage with huge letter placards on the laps of their coats, each wearing his own initial, the letters spelling the word MUSES.

The program opened with a chorus by the 18 musicians rendering the "Lonesome Tunes" of the Kentucky mountains.

Robert Wright sang "The Little Mohec."

Chas. M. Meacham, as the M of the muses, recited a patriotic poem, narrating a terrific encounter between a fighting dog and "the wrong tom cat," in which the dog was put out of business.

Miss Margaret Dalton sang "Barba-Allen." Pettus White followed with "Jack aro," a Knott county ditty.

Thos. C. Underwood was the U of the program and gave a medley of original joyful and jingo jingles, some of them in music rendered by "an own cousin of Ricardo Martin," as he termed himself. Mr. F. H. Kuhn, one of the musicians with the Fife evangelists, then gave a violin selection. Mrs. L. E. Foster's "Old Maid's Song" made a big hit. John Stites with the first S on his ample breast recited the humorous poem "The Trail of a Cat," which ultimately became a busy but crooked thoroughfare in a great metropolis.

Miss Annie Virginia Trice sweetly sang "The Nightingale." Oscar Wright followed with "The Hangman's Song." Alfred H. Eckles next appeared in a round of witticisms, humorous passages and threats of something worse, which in the end failed to materialize. He conducted himself with E's and eclat.

Miss Nell Espie's rich voice was next heard in "The Little Sparrow." Guy Starling's solo was "The Lonesome Low." Ira L. Smith finished for the Muses in a jolly collection of "Samples and Sonnets," presented in his own inimitable way. The Sextette gave "Sourwood Mountain" so successfully that an encore was called for. The singers were: Pettus White, Walter Trice, L. E. Foster, Robt. Wright, Guy Starling, Oscar Wright.

The last number was "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," sung by Mrs. L. E. Barnes by request. The program closed with the chorus "America," the audience rising.

Miss Mable Moore presided at the piano.

The audience was a highly appreciative one and everybody seemed pleased, at least no one complained of not getting "a quarter's worth."

The funds, about $50 above expenses, will be used to buy furnishings for the club room of the Public Library.

PRICES ARE STILL LOWER

But the Rush to Wind Up Tobacco Market Shows No Let-Up.

ALMOST 800,000 POUNDS

Sold On the Hopkinsville Loose Floors Again This Week.

Still showing a decided weakness, the tobacco market had heavy sales again this week, the loose floors handling nearly 800,000 pounds. The highest price for fine leaf was $14.50 and the week's average dropped perilously close to $10.

Where all of the tobacco is coming from is a mystery. Some of it is from counties so remote that it must pass entirely through adjoining counties and the wagons make trips of 50 or more miles. The sales are already 3,000,000 pounds in excess of the entire season last year.

GOOD LADY PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Cynthia Gilliland Dies Near City at Advanced Age.

Mrs. Cynthia Gilliland died about noon Thursday at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. George P. Pool, on the Buttermilk road, three miles North of the city. She was about 85 years old and the widow of the late Esq. Alex. Gilliland. Some years ago she was stricken with paralysis and her health had since been gradually declining. Mrs. Gilliland was a member of the Baptist church and a lady held in the highest esteem by everyone who knew her. For several years she was a resident of this city and her many friends here will learn with sincere regret of her demise. Three children, Millard Gilliland, of Arizona; Mrs. G. Clark Bowles, of Marion, Ky.; and Mrs. George P. Pool, of the county, survive. The interment took place in the family burying ground, near Larkin, yesterday.

ENLISTMENTS FOR SERVICE

Company D. Is Awaiting Expectantly A Call To Active Duty.

Up to yesterday Co. D. had not been called to the colors, but everything is in readiness for active service. Capt. H. J. Stites is keeping in close touch with his men and the company was yesterday ordered to be mobilized and await further orders. It is the only company in the Third Regiment now inactive, but it may be that it is being held in reserve for possible State duty, as the state needs a few companies in its own service.

BRITISH GAIN 2 MORE TOWNS

Capture Heninel and Wancourt in Spite of Heavy Snow Storm.

CANADIANS KEEP STRIDE

Further Progress in Clearing Enemy From Last Hold on Vimy Ridge.

In spite of rain and snow and a forty mile gale, the British troops fighting in France have again delivered telling blows on the German line southeast of Arras and north on the remaining portion of the Vimy Ridge in the hands of the Germans. The bad weather has extended to the front held by the French, and Thursday saw no activity there except in the nature of reciprocal bombardments.

The latest British gain southeast of Arras captured the villages of Heninel and Wancourt and adjoining defense works and also permitted them in this region to cross the Cojeul river and take the heights on the east bank of the stream. The Canadians kept up their good work on the Vimy Ridge and made additional progress Thursday in clearing it of the enemy.

The Berlin war office admits the capture by the British of Monchy-le-Preux Wednesday, but says attacks north of the village and on Vimy and Fampoux were repulsed with heavy losses. Of Thursday's fighting the German official communication says the British attacks near Souchez and Fampoux failed. It adds that 24 British and French aircraft were lost on the western front during a conflict Wednesday.

Comparative quiet prevails in all the other war theaters. No infantry attacks have been reported, but there has been considerable artillery activity on the Austro-Italian front and in Macedonia between Monastir and the Cerna river.

Chas. O. Prowse, at present secretary to the Board of City Commissioners, has applied for a position in the Aeronautical Department of Construction of the United States. Mr. Prowse has constructed no less than seven aeroplanes, two of which made successful flights in this city in 1912, one carrying passengers. He has also had extensive military experience, having been captain of Co. D. He is an attorney and a former Judge of Christian county and a highly capable man in many fields of operation.

Will Fight For America.

It has been said that once a German always a German, but this was disproved most emphatically here in our own city when Paul Stadelman joined Company D., K. N. G. Paul is the son of Nick Stadelman, a prominent butcher, who was formerly a lieutenant in the German army. Paul is only 17 years of age but his father, being loyal to the cause of America, readily gave his consent for his son to fight against his former fatherland.

QUICK RESULTS ARE UNLIKELY

Bulgaria Reported, Especially, Anxious to Consider Basis For Separate Peace.

COUNTRIES' FOOD SHORT

Officials Here Regard Move Merely One Step on Long Road to Negotiations.

Washington, April 13.—Austrian and Bulgarian representatives are endeavoring to approach entente diplomats in Switzerland on the subject of peace.

Press dispatches Thursday reporting Bulgarian efforts in this line developed the fact that it is known here not only that Bulgaria has taken soundings but also that there has been similar action in the name of Austria-Hungary. Whether the two countries were working separately or together is not known nor has any reference been made to the attitude of Germany or Turkey.

Officials here see in the Austrian and Bulgarian action merely an expression of weariness with the war and anxiety to bring it to an end without, however, involving any indications of desperation on their part which would make them propose terms acceptable to the entente. As a result there is every evidence that the informal efforts now being made mark merely a step in the long road that will eventually lead to peace and do not offer hope of real negotiations in the near future.

This opinion is strengthened by the fact that the entente diplomats have not accepted the suggestions made to them for private conversations but they will not go into any such discussion blindly.

The recent public statement of Count Czernin, Austrian minister for foreign affairs, that the central powers still stood ready for conferences, and the widespread comment on it in the press were interpreted here to indicate a growing desire for peace in the central empires. Similar statements by Bulgarian leaders strengthened this viewpoint.

RUSSIAN REVOLUTION FELT

Austria is known to have been deeply affected by war weariness and by the Russian revolution. It is generally felt here that the Central empires have reached the maximum of their military strength and it is believed the upheaval across the border might find a decided echo among Austria's conglomerate and disaffected peoples. Food conditions are serious in industrial Austria, and the animosity among the people has fallen alarmingly.

Bulgaria likewise is troubled by food shortage and the Russian revolution. The latter has brought about on the surface the old friendliness for the Russian people and has injected into the question the decision of the class to fight against their liberator. In a strictly military sense, however, Bulgaria is understood to be stronger than at any time during the war, her losses have been negligible.

RETURNS TO GERMANY.

Walter Stadelman, a German youth who was in and about Hopkinsville two years ago, a relative of the family of that name, some time ago returned to Germany. He had musical talent and spent some months here and later worked with a construction company on a tunnel between Nashville and Birmingham. At that time he was about 18 or 19 years of age.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorize to announce

We are authorized to announce WILLIAM R. HOWELL,

for the Democratic nomination for the State Senate from the District com-

The American flag is to fly imme-

American airmen, is to adopt the American uniform and carry the Stars and Stripes during their incursions into enemy territory and in battles in

A resolution to provide a referendum on amending the state constituopposed by the Illinois Woman's suf-

President Wilson in conference with Speaker Clark and majority leader Kitchin, insisted upon the selective draft plan for raising a large army.
At the same time it was stated that the War Department virtually had decided on plans under which opportunity would be given for approximately 500,000 men to volunteer for service for the term of the war.

The department of justice has wired to Frank C. Dailey, special prosecutor in the election fraud cases, that the department is convinced there is nothing in the supreme court's recent decision which affects the prosecutions in the Evansville and other Indiana cases, and he is advised to go ahead on the assumption that the indictments are perfectly good. The department takes the view that the indictments are based on alleged crimes committed in connection with an election, as differentiated from a primary, and therefore are valid.

The speed and power of the British assault in what will probably be known in history as the battle of Arras, seem to have thoroughly surprised the Germans. So much so in fact their usual retaliatory artillery fire has been absolutely negligible in the last two days. This is partly due,
of course, to the numbers of guns captured to which must be added the number knocked out by the British artillery before the actual assault began. It is also due to the fact that the Germans have been too busy to get their remaining guns away from immediate danger to bother firing them at the enemy. In a German artillery position east of Arras, known as "battery valley," could be seen the remains of 24 field pieces. A trip over the newly taken lines revealed a condition of trenches closely approximating those recently evacuated by the Germans in the Somme. Many dugouts remained with damaged portals, but the trenches, including all communication lines, have been unmercifully battered about. The advance was halted Wednesday by a snowstorm.

ANSWERED.

A constabulary sergeant, finding an ass wandering one day, took it and drove it to the "pound." On the way he met a man who, wondering at the sergeant driving an ass, stared at him so hard that the sergeant said:

"Well, are you sorry I'm bringing your brother to jail?"

"Oh, I see," said the man; "is that all? I thought he was going to join

Harvard and Yale men bear one another an ancient if good-natured grudge. In the stadium occurred an incident not to be minimized. A Princeton end cost his team a 15-yard penalty because he failed to report to the referee when he came into the game to relieve another player. The Tigers protested vigorously, but the official was obdurate. "Humph," grunted an Ell, who had viewed Harvard's proceedings with emotions not altogether amiable, "did the referee expect Winn to speak to him on the Harvard field
—without an introduction? Absurd!"

CONSTIPATION

And Sour Stomach Caused This Lady Much Suffering. Black-Draught Relieved.

Meadowville, Ky.—Mrs. Pearl Patrick, of this place, writes: "I was very constipated. I had sour stomach and was so uncomfortable. I went to the doctor. He gave me some pills.
They weakened me and seemed to tear up my digestion. They would gripe me and afterwards it seemed
I was more constipated than before.

I heard of Black-Draught and decided to try it. I found it just what I needed. It was an easy laxative, and not bad to swallow. My digestion soon improved. I got well of the sour stomach, my bowels soon seemed normal, no more griping, and I would take a dose now and then, and was in good shape.

I cannot say too much for Black-Draught for it is the finest laxative
one can use."

Thedford's Black-Draught has for many years been found of great value in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Easy to take, gentle and reliable in its action, leaving no bad after-effects, it has won the praise of thousands of people who have used it. NC-135

WHEN PETER WENT TO EXILE

Roaring Mountain Torrent Was Gravyard of 300 Motor Cars As Serbians Fled From Country.

No story in contemporary history is more replete with dramatic incidents than that of the passage of King Peter and his countrymen into exile, when Serbia's little army gave way before the overwhelming onslaughts of the Germanic hordes.
One of the many spectacular episodes that marked this tragic flight across the mountains is narrated by a correspondent who reached the scene of its enactment, in company with the Bulgarian forces, a fortnight later, says Popular Mechanics. It is the account of the last of the Serbian war autos; a description of their abandonment and destruction at the end of a road where many refugees began their exhausting climb along the hazardous trails leading into Albania.

Leaving the last city in the line of retreat, touring cars, limousines, trucks and ambulances were driven along a road that hugs the brink of a precipice as it follows the course of a roaring torrent through the mountain recesses. The opposite side of this road is sealed by almost perpendicular walls of rock. For several miles it proceeds thus, a splendid picturesque highway. Then abruptly it stops at the foot of a narrow, steep path that winds up the cliff.

When the motor cars reached the end of this road they were no longer of use to the Serbs. Obviously there was but one thing to be done, and that was to destroy the machines so that they would not fall into the hands of the enemy. So one by one, their wheels spinning and their unbridled engines roaring as they leaped through the air, the cars were shot over the edge of the rock bank to dash themselves against the bowlders far below. In all some 300 vehicles made this death plunge.

WAR! What Is It All About?

HAS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armor glistering just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother—Serbia? Tear aside the curtain of Europe's politics and see the grim and sinister game of chess that is being played. See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions are being sacrificed. Read the history of the past one hundred years, as written by some of the greatest authorities the world has ever known, and learn the naked, shameful truth. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give to you

A big book and over 300 pages, size 10 x 7 inches, handsomely and durably bound in cloth, containing the dramatic history of the great events leading up to the present time; over 50 important and timely special articles by experts on the different phases of the conflict; hundreds of graphic pictures, portraits, photographs, diagrams, specially drawn war maps, illuminating statistical records, copies of official documents and diplomatic messages exchanged between the powers—a clear, vivid, accurate, permanent, interesting and valuable record—a record which once seen you will not willingly be without. Europe's past and present are here dramatically pictured and presented. Hundreds of illustrations graphically tell their own stories. More fascinating than any romance, here is a history so vivid, so dramatic, so stirring, so fascinating, so realistic, so wonderfully presented, so thrillingly told that it leaves an indelible impression.

INDIANS REAL OLD TIMERS

Many of the Pacific Coast Tribes Claim Ancestry Dating Back 125,000 Years.

Indian tribes of the Pacific west are the champion old timers of the continent and can point back to racial existence in their present homes and hunting grounds for a space of 125,000 years.

This is the information just announced in coast cities by Prof. Leo J. Frachtenberg of the Smithsonian institute, according to the Spokane Chronicle.

Of the 58 distinct races inhabiting the American continent before the coming of the white man, 38 made their homes in California, Oregon and Washington. It was in the coast states that the great manufacturing industries of primitive man were centered. Excavations made today disclose stone implements and weapons by the thousands, indicating that they were made in wholesale lots and retailed over the continent.

The tribal arts and handiwork of the present-day Indian are of deep significance and origin. Professor Frachtenberg declares. He does not fear the passing of the Indian numerically but he does foresee the racial oblivion of the Indian unless historical societies and agencies make systematic efforts to preserve the tribal arts and trades.

WAS TOO DELICATE FOR WORK

Mother Worried Over "Slavery" Imposed on 25-Year-Old "Boy" Who Weighed 200 Pounds.

When their only son was twenty-five years old he went to work, Claude Allen—writes in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. His mother hated to see him do it, but his heartless father said it was the best thing for him to do. The boy started to work one Monday morning and the poor mother worried all day. The youngster weighed only 200 pounds, and she knew well enough that he was too delicate for the task he was expected to perform. She had a splendid supper ready for him, and to insure he wouldn't get cold during the night she took a quilt from pa's bed and put it on his. Two hours after son reached home a little man, weighing about 100 pounds, entered the house. It was pa. Mother had just fixed son in bed and wrapped a hot blanket about his feet, and she carried pa's overcoat in and threw it across the foot of the boy's bed. Pa told her she had done right in getting son to bed early and that she should get him out early in the morning so he could reach his work on time.

"He is not going to work tomorrow," said mother. "I phoned the man that he could just get someone else to do his work. I am not going to let him make a slave of my baby."

NEW WAR VESSEL IS UNCANNY

Coast Defense Boat Invented by John Hays Hammond, Jr., Operated From Shore by Wireless.

The most uncanny vessel afloat in American waters is anchored in the cove at West Gloucester, Mass., says the Kansas City Star. The only craft to be seen, it is the new coast defense boat, invented by John Hays Hammond, Jr. You feel that it is uncanny when you look at it afloat in the little harbor and realize that without a soul on board it can nevertheless be directed in any direction, and when it is in line with an enemy ship it can fire a broadside as effectively as a big man-of-war with a full crew and complement of trained gunners.

The wireless is the explanation. From the coast Mr. Hammond can start the motor on the boat, set the steering gear as he likes and then train the guns on any desired target. It is just another of the marvels which modern warfare has brought into being.

As to its practicability, the inventor is modest but positive.

"It's all right for coast defense work," he says, "and it is comparatively so simple that one a week can be turned out by a shipbuilder without difficulty. In the event of a big order, the parts could be standardized and made in wholesale lots, so that the output could be greatly increased."

CROSSING LEGS HURTS HEART

"You Know What Happens to a Stream of Water When You Squeeze Garden Hose," Says Physical Expert.

"Every time a man crosses his legs he gives his heart that much extra work to do," says William Muidoon, according to an exchange. "You know what happens to a stream of water when you squeeze the garden hose."

This widely known physical instructor attaches great importance to proper breathing. He told me of the trouble he had in making John L. Sullivan breathe properly, and he dwelt on the harm that numbers of Americans do themselves (witness the prevalence of catarrhal affections) by the bad habit of mouth breathing.

"Keep your mouths shut. Breathe through your nostrils," he is always saying to his patients.

If the nostrils are stopped up he explains how they may be made to function properly by simple cleansing ablutions and he insists that these be performed regularly.

"We need filtered air just as we need filtered water, and the nose is our filter."

MEXICO FOR MEXICANS.

Concessions now being given by the government of Mexico in many instances make it obligatory to employ Mexican labor and prohibit the use of any language other than Spanish in the conducting of the public affairs of the company granted the concession. The concession recently granted a company to construct a railroad, provides Mexican labor must be employed, Spanish must be used on all the lines to the exclusion of any other language and the stations named by the company shall bear names of pure Mexican origin.

SCIENCE ASSISTS THE BLIND

New Electro-Optical Device Makes It Possible for the Sightless Actually to "Read."

Of all the scientific marvels incident to the reconstruction of wrecked humanity that of providing eyes for the blind seems the most wonderful. Yet it is declared that Doctor Fournier d'Albe has perfected an electro-optical device by which it is actually possible to enable blind persons to read ordinary letter press by ear.

The printed sheet is placed over a slab with an aperture upon which is projected a beam of light from an illuminated disk. By means of selenium exposed to the light reflected from the type sounds are produced which vary with the form of the letters. These sounds are carried into a telephone instrument. This instrument has an apparatus for magnifying the sounds and thus magnified they are conveyed to the ear.

In short, each letter is given its own particular sound by this process. It is declared that the totally blind person may in three or four days learn the alphabet as thus produced, and that in a comparatively short time he will be able to read at the rate of 25 or 30 words a minute. The device has been tested to a considerable extent with blind soldiers and explained in great detail to the Roentgen society at the Institute of Electrical Engineers.

The machine is called the optophone. It was invented in 1912, but only now has been brought to the point of usefulness. At first it was only a curiosity, enabling a blind man to "hear" when a window blind was raised or a light switched on.

IT PUZZLED HIM

"Did you spend so much money as this before I married you?"

"Why, yes."

"Then I can't understand why your father went on so when I took you away from him."

CONSUMPTION OF RUBBER.

Reports covering the world's total production of crude rubber indicate that the 1916 output amounted to 178,000 tons, of which 114,000 tons, or 64 per cent, were consumed in America. The consumption of rubber in America has more than doubled since 1914. The great rubber plantations of the East now produce about 75 per cent of the total and promise to show a decided increase for 1917. It is expected that this year's crop will amount to 235,000 tons; 1,412,000 acres are known to be under cultivation.

Proper View of Life.

Why is it, I wonder, that the little boy almost always imagines that outside of home is to be found the larger liberty? Why do young men fondly dream that yonder, always yonder, is to be found business opportunity? Why does the dissolute man conclude that, outside the common virtues of society, he is to find the larger life? For you, my son, will sometime find that your largest liberty was in the old home, where, if there was authority, there was also deep and abiding love; and you, my friend, will find that others succeeded in your home town, while you failed in the world; and you, my liberty-loving man, will most surely realize, that in the common virtues of the simply good life is to be found what you seek in the by-paths of the world. Find the wealth that lies everywhere about you. Practice the virtues that you know. Cherish the love that is yours now. Value the friends that you have known; and in the superficial you will find the profound, and in the simple things the things eternal.—St. John's Bulletin.

DAN'S REPARATION

By SUSAN CLAGETT.

"I tell you Ellen, I will not have it. The man is a gambler. I grant he is a gentleman, that he is a delightful companion. I feel his charm as well as you, but to have him something nearer than a friend is not to be thought of. You must give up that foolish idea."

"Idea," scoffed Dan's sister. "I love Larry O'Connor, Dan. I am thirty years old and he is the first man I have ever cared for save yourself. Knowing this, do you think that I will give him up?"

"You are old enough not to let your heart get the better of your judgment, your common sense. I have known O'Connor for six years. I know him as one man comes to know another up here in the mines. He is a true friend. He will divide his last penny with an enemy if that enemy is hungry, but he can no more keep out of a game of chance than you can keep from breathing. He left here Christmas night and went directly to McDougan's. He broke the bank. At daybreak he took his team and started for Fort Gibson. I heard today he made a clean-up there."

"I must think it out, Dan," Ellen answered slowly.

It had turned bitterly cold, the cold that freezes cheeks and extremities unawares. Fortunately there was no wind, but in crossing the flats Larry O'Connor had to pause several times to thaw the ice from the feet of his dog team. Each time he stopped there came a whimper from the bundle on the sled, and at a longer pause a voice said irritably:

"My heart is freezing, Larry. Aren't we almost there? Don't your stubbornness in making me take the trip!"

"There was nothing else to do, Tim. I had to get you away. You have about finished me in Fairbanks, as you have in every other place I have been. Now I am through with you. I leave you at Fort Gibson. What you do thereafter is nothing to me, save this: You are to keep away from me. They will care for you at the fort until you can travel. Then hit the post trail for Holy Cross."

Larry left his team at Gibson, returning the next morning on Orr's stage. The first person he met upon reaching Fairbanks, as he was the last with whom he had spoken before leaving, was Dan Hilday. O'Connor stiffened as he saw him. He could not forget their talk, a talk that had turned the first glimmer of happiness that he had seen for years into black rage and despair. He would have passed with a curt nod but that he saw Ellen standing near her brother. His heart missed a beat as he caught sight of her, her arms filled with tannapack, her gay cap and blanket coat making a spot of brilliant color against the grayness of the coming night. She nodded gayly and called to him that she was keeping open house New Year's day and he must come and help decorate the rooms.

Dan wheeled about and looked at her with a heavy frown. Larry thanked her, but said he had an engagement.

"Break it," she commanded with a laugh. "All the world, including the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, are coming, and there will be no place else for you to go, so come you must."

All through New Year's day and evening Ellen watched and waited. Then he came, so late that her heart had grown chill with fear. As he made his way toward her he was stopped by a newcomer. Ellen could not help but overhear their conversation.

"Where is Tim? I heard he was with you," said the newcomer.

Larry hesitated. "He was, for a time." His eyes rested upon Dan, who was standing near. "The two of us went to the fort on Christmas night. He will go on to Holy Cross and from there to Nome."

"Doing better or worse up here?"

"Worse."

"And you are still the scapegoat, I suspect?"

"Drop it, Jack," Larry said irritably. The other turned to Dan. "Have you ever seen his twin? Allike as two peas—like in everything save character. Larry has all of that. Tim is a lovable chap, but weak, and the worst of his weakness is that he lets O'Connor take the blame for his misdeeds. I think he has committed every sin save murder and he is a confirmed gambler. A lucky one, too, if all that I hear is true."

"Larry left town some days ago after cleaning up McDougan's bank."

"Tim, you mean," the other answered with a show of anger. "I suppose he has been up to his usual tricks. It wasn't Larry. That fellow is the straightest, whitest white man I have ever known."

Dan considered. "I guess it is up to me to make reparation," he said, glancing about the room. He made his way to his sister and Larry, who were standing together at the further end of the room, and talked very earnestly with them for some minutes; then he rapped upon a table standing near.

The silence was instantaneous. Dan hesitated, cleared his throat, still hesitated. Then with a rush the words came—not many, but when they were uttered pandemonium reigned for a moment.

"Say it again," someone called.

And once more Dan said:

"Ladies and gentlemen I wish to announce the approaching marriage of my sister to Mr. Lawrence O'Connor."

MAY CLOSE DISTILLERIES

Kansas Agricultural President Says Move Would Save Grain For Food.

St. Louis, April 13.—The closing of breweries and distilleries to save grain and increase of bread output through the milling of wheat to 1 per cent. flour instead of 73 per cent., as at present, were among suggestions for food conservation made here today by Henry J. Waters, president of the Kansas State Agricultural College, before a conference called by Secretary Houston, of the Agricultural Department to consider the food situation of the nation. The advanced percentage in milling of flour would increase the production 18,000,000 barrels, President Waters said, while the shutting down of breweries and distilleries would save annually 618,508,095 bushels of grain suitable for fattening livestock.

"We are entering upon the greatest of wars without a reserve of food," he continued. "Germany spent years in accumulating such a reserve in preparation for emergency. This country's visible supply of food will be consumed before another harvest. Should we have an unfavorable season the United States would face the greatest food shortage since the Civil War."

"Army necessities—hard tack, pork and beans—must at once be increased. More beans must be raised and hog raisers must look to increase in the pork output."

Increased gardening, rapid extension of community canning clubs and an increase in potato acreage were among the other conservation measures advocated by President Waters.

Kentucky distillers have already offered to convert their plants into alcohol manufactories if the Government desires, in event of war.

All doubt has been dispelled as to whether or not the Buck Brand Overalls factory would be secured for Hopkinsville. W. R. It was at first thought that the factory would open about June first, but from all present indications it will be under way by the middle of May. To commence with, forty or fifty women will be wanted to sew and it is promised that good wages will be paid.

RECORD OF 94.

Lady Walnut Hill Skipped
The 95th Day.

Lady Walnut Hill did not lay Tuesday the 95th day. After putting the world's record high above what the orthodox poultry world believed was physically possible, she went to her roost unscathed for the first time in more than three months.

Wednesday morning at eight o'clock she laid a two-ounce egg, resuming work that will endure as phenomenal. She made her world's laying record, as a pullet, as she was not one year old until April 12th. She is a White Leghorn, weighing 3½ pounds and owned by L. R. Ireland, of Louisville.

Edward C. Major is announced by authority as a candidate for Sheriff of Christian county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary. Mr. Mafor made the race for the nomination for the same office in 1913 and accepted his defeat gracefully and loyally. He feels that this is his time to be given the standard of his party for this important office and he will have a strong following, especially among dry forces of the county.

U. S. FLAG IS AMONG OLDEST

Most of the Other National Emblems Are Youngsters as Compared With American Standard.

Tests made a decade ago indicated that only one person in twenty could give the correct list of original 13 colonies. Fewer still know that the American flag is one of the oldest in the world.

The evidence shows that Denmark,
Switzerland and the United States
figure in the court records as claimants. The Danes assert that their red swallow-tailed standard with a white cross was adopted in 1219, but jealous disputants have brought the counter-claim that alterations have been made since then. The Swiss flag, a red field with a white Greek cross, has been in existence unaltered, as the flag of a canton, since the seventeenth century, but Switzerland has been a nation only since the confederation of 1848. The Stars and Stripes was adopted in 1777, and although the banner is more of a growth than a creation, it has retained those distinguishing features which Washington breathed into it 140 years ago.

Some of the other national flags are mere youngsters as compared with the American standard, which can show a flawless birth certificate.
The standard of Spain was established in 1785, that of Great Britain in 1801, Netherlands in 1806, Japan in 1859, Italy in 1861, Germany in 1871 and the tricolor of France in 1794.

SURE THING

Mother—Do you think that young man has saved anything?

Daughter—Oh, he must have,
mamma; he says he never courted a girl before.

MAN'S ENORMOUS APPETITE.

An average man who has seen seventy-five years of life has eaten an amount of food equal to some 1-500 times his own weight, says the Popular Science Monthly. One hundred and ten tons of food he has consumed, of which the bread alone, if it could be piled separately, would occupy a space equal to that of a good-sized building. The vegetables on reappearing would fill a train three miles in length and the bacon when placed end to end in single slices would stretch along a line four miles long. The reappearance of five tons of fish and one-fifth of a ton of cheese would surely haunt him, while 12,000 eggs, 10,000 pounds of sugar and 1,500 pounds of salt would put in their claim. And he has smoked no less than 250,000 cigarettes. Let's hope he has saved the coupons.

THE ARMY AT WATERLOO.

Compared with the armies of today in Europe, the forces that took part in the battle of Waterloo were insignificant. The strength of Wellington's army is given as 49,608 infantry, 12,402 cavalry and 5,645 artillerymen with 156 guns. Of these the British numbered scarcely 24-000. Napoleon's army consisted of 48,950 infantry, 15,765 cavalry and 7,232 artillerymen, a total of 71,947 men with 246 guns as against a total of 67,655 men under Wellington.

THE REASON.

June—And why did Bess break
her engagement?
Belle—He was so hateful. Why, the poor fish seemed to love everybody.

LOGICAL NOMENCLATURE.

"Why do dentists call their offices dental parlors?"
"Well, ain't they drawing-rooms?"

CO-OPERATION.

She—I now have the liberty to marry.
He—Then I'll go get the license.

USE FOUND FOR ALLIGATORS

Impressed into Service as Sewer Cleaners When Mechanical Devices Fail to Do Work.

The alligator has graduated into the useful class. At last his sluggish energy has been usefully directed.

Recently a 600-foot 12-inch sewer pipe in Fort Meade, Fla., became clogged with sand and dirt. According to the Engineering Record several sewer-cleaning contrivances were used and about $1,500 was spent, but to no avail.

The pipe remained clogged as before. At this juncture the superintendent of water and sewers secured a small alligator, to which he fastened a rope. The 'gator was lowered into the pipe. After a struggle in the unsavory environment he reached the next manhole, dragging the rope after him. When he had traveled one section of the pipe, the rope, to the middle of which knotted chains were attached, was pulled back and forth and the obstructions removed.

Following this success, other alligators were used, until at the present time ten are employed for cleaning sewers. They are doing what skilled workmen equipped with modern apparatus have failed to do.

ARE WIDE AWAKE IN WINTER

Hibernating Animals Do Not Sleep
Through Cold Weather as Generally Believed, Says Hunter.

If you imagine that the hibernating animal dodges the approaching severities of the winter season by ducking into a spell of unconsciousness through which he is made impervious to the outside influences,
you are entertaining entirely false notions. At least that's the belief of a hunter-writer in the Boston Globe,
who says:

"Our raccoons and skunks and bears crawl away to hiding places and seem to be torpid, but they quickly awaken and become active when their dens are invaded by human or other foes.

"Twice I have seen bears uncer-eased from under fallen trees during very cold weather in midwinter, and in both cases the animals were awake and on the defensive as soon as the choppers could get at them.

"Raccoons do not hibernate in the sense of becoming unconscious. They den up in hollow trees and logs, but let someone come along and strike the tree a smart blow and they are up and dressed and ready to flee as a family aroused by a fire alarm.

"During nearly every winter thaw bears, skunks and raccoons come out and prow around, sometimes going miles away from their winter quarters."

DON'T KISS THE CAT.

It must be a terrifying revelation to those who kiss their cats, that has been made by Professor Fiocci, the Italian chemist. He has found by experiment that when a cat licks its lips it spreads over them a saliva in which there are swarms of minute bacilli not free from danger to human beings. When he inoculated rabbits and guinea pigs with this noxious substance they died within 24 hours; and he has come to the conclusion that it is dangerous for anyone to indulge in the habit of kissing cats.

HER FEAT.

"Cinderella with her glass slipper
did the impossible."
"How so?"
"She did the right thing by putting her foot in it."

SILENT PARTNER WANTED.

She—I do not care to marry you.
I do not care even to talk to you.
He (a widower)—That is precisely the reason I want you to marry me.

HABIT.

St. Peter—Give this man a pass into heaven.
Quick-Lunch Waiter—Make it
two.

NATURALLY SO.

"Is this aviation story characteristic?"
"I should say it has a great deal of atmosphere about it."

NOT BEYOND "DOING."

Hook—That man is a puzzle.
Crook—Yes, but I'll bet I can do him.

MANY DUMB VICTIMS OF WAR

Thousands of Horses Killed on Each Mile of Battle Front—America Has Sent 2,815,000.

"It is almost impossible for the mind to grasp the enormous wastage of horseflesh on the battle fronts of Europe," was the recent statement of Thomas Stevens of Montreal, a capitalist who has supplied the French government with many horses during the last two years.

"It has been estimated by the military experts," he said, "that the wastage in the last two years—and by wastage is meant the animals either killed or injured, and does not mean death from natural causes—has been between 45,000 and 47,000 a month for every mile on the western front. In eight hours of the first night of the drive at Verdun, there was a wastage of 5,011 on the three-mile line.

"Every eight miles along the western front there is a horse hospital. Of the horses in these hospitals, approximately 27 per cent are placed there for sickness, and from 68 to 72 per cent because of injuries.

"At the beginning of the war the French had about 525,000 horses and the Germans approximately 720,000. The allies, of course, have purchased many thousands of horses from the United States and Canada. The supply used by Germany came mostly from Austria-Hungary, Norway and Sweden.

"Since October, 1914, there have been shipped from America to France and England about 2,815,000 horses. The French government has paid exporters for these animals something like $380,000,000. Yet the United States still has a large supply of good horses left."

A KEEN RETORT

Wife (angrily)—You talk of possessing judgment. My judgment is superior to yours any day.

Hubby—Oh, unquestionably. Our choice of life partners proves that.

A LAND OF REPTILES.

Australia is supplied with 100 species of snakes, three-fourths of them venomous. The big pythons and rock snakes are harmless, but as one travels from the tropics southward the dangerous varieties increase in number, and in Tasmania all are venomous, though only five are really deadly, and fortunately these are rarely seen.

The continent is also abundantly supplied with lizards. Three hundred and ninety species are recorded, and they may be seen not only in the woods and prairies and deserts, in the water, among rocks and trees, but also in the less frequented city streets.—National Geographic Magazine.

EXPLAINED AT LAST.

She—See all those baldheads down in the front row.

He—Yes; there's always danger of a panic in a theater, so they put the cool-headed men in the front seats.

OF COURSE NOT.

"I see here a note to the effect that the Finns are a nautical race."

"Well, there's nothing fishy about that, is there?"

HIS SPECIALTY.

"Has your son any particular athletic facility at college?"

"Oh, yes. He is running through my money."

HARD LUCK.

Jack—I hear, old man, that you are matrimonially inclined.

Tom (sadly)—Alas, no; declined.

PARADOXICAL.

"Works of real genius are rare."

"I call them well done."

THREE DAYS AT SAME TIME

When It Is Saturday Night in Alaska It Is Tuesday Morning in Singapore.

Three days can exist at the same time! It sounds impossible, says Hereward Carrington, but it is nevertheless a fact that when it is very late Sunday night at Attu island, Alaska, it is Monday noon in London and Tuesday morning at Cape Deshef, Siberia! If one travels westward one loses a day in going round the world; if one travels eastward one gains a day. Could one travel at the rate of 15 degrees a day one would lose exactly one hour each day. In 24 days the circuit would be complete. Inasmuch as sun and earth are constantly revolving and day merging into night, Sunday passing into Monday, etc., it is obvious that at one point on the world's surface an arbitrary line must be set, to the east of which is one day, to the west of which is the next day. This immediate "jump" of a day regulates the calendar for one circumnavigating the globe. This "international date line," as it is called, passing north and south, and dividing our world into two equal parts, is the 180th meridian and crosses the Pacific ocean—where fortunately there is very little land—taking a slight bulge outward to include Siberia, and one the other way to include Attu island, which belongs to Alaska geographically. The map will show this. West of this line is Monday and east of it is Sunday.—Rochester Post Express.

Leaders in the Flowery Kingdom Look to Uncle Sam for Pedagogic Knowledge.

China is not so slow after all, writes Girard in the Philadelphia Ledger. She has sent a commission over to the Philippines to learn firsthand how Uncle Sam teaches the little brown girls and boys.

China will discover there several things. First, a school system which imparts vocational knowledge and so enables the Filipino to earn a better living.

Second, more good and free schools per capita than can be seen in the Asiatic or African colonial possessions of any country.

Third, better schools in the Philippines after 19 years of American occupation than are found in India after more than 150 years of English conquest.

We did more in one decade for Filipino education than the Spaniard had done in three centuries. Had you gone to Manila, as I did, a few years after Dewey made his debut there, and revisit the place now, you would be prouder than ever of your country.

GOT HIM.

"John," said his wife, "I have a conundrum for you. Why am I like a popular story?"

"Because everybody admires you."

"That isn't the answer."

"What is it, then?"

"Because—and she glanced at her calico dress—I'm never out of print."

Then, in spite of war prices, he could do nothing else but stump up for a new costume.

ANCIENTS FEARED THE DOG.

Every race has looked upon the dog in a different light. To some, as to the Maoris and certain Indian tribes, it has appeared as an article of diet. To others it has been a beast of burden only a little inferior to the horse. To many it has been a companion and friend. Only the Assyrians and Babylonians were afraid of the dog. In an old Babylonian prayer it is written:

"From the dog, the snake and the scorpion and whatever else is baneful, may Merodach preserve us."

ESPECIALLY.

"Is the running cost of automobiles high?"

"Yes, especially when they're running down people."

EASY MONEY.

"The famous priuna donna bought herself a beautiful home."

"And to think she got it for a song!"

WEATHER A HANDICAP

To The Crop Preparations For The Season This Year.

From Washington comes the cry of the shortage in food crops, while from the state experiment station comes the advice to plant more crops and utilize every available foot of ground, and it rained again Thursday night. For the last several weeks the farmers of Christian county have been exercising every effort to get their crops in the ground but the weather man has double-crossed them at every turn. The situation begins to take on a serious attitude, but the farmers of Christian are still hard at it, the business men of the city are lending aid and advice, everybody is pulling with his neighbor to make the best out of the situation and if it is at all possible, the farmers of this county will do their part, and more, if necessary, to hold up the standard of the county, state and nation in this time of need.

Our cabbage plants have arrived and we now have plenty.

KENTUCKIAN ON ARMY RETIRED LIST

Bill for Benefit of W. H. Kehoe, an Injured Cadet.

Washington, April 11.—Without opposition the Senate today adopted the amendment to the Military Academy Bill introduced by Senator James, which provides that William Harrison Kehoe, of Mayville, shall be placed on the retired list of the army with the pay of a retired Second Lieutenant of infantry. The measure now goes to the House and cannot be stricken from the bill on a point of order, as was the case under a different parliamentary procedure during the last Congress.

Mr. Kehoe, the son of former Representative J. N. Kehoe, was admitted to West Point June 14, 1913. Two years afterward, while a cadet, he was thrown from a horse and badly hurt. While in a weakened condition Mr. Kehoe contracted tuberculosis and was sent to the army general hospital at Fort Bayard, N. M., where he is now employed as a draftsman.

A bill for the relief of the Kentuckian, introduced by Senator James, passed the Senate last July. It was placed on the unanimous consent calendar of the House and was afterward defeated on the objection of minority leader Mann. The measure now bids fair to be speedily enacted by the House, as it is a part of an urgent supply bill which passed the Senate today in less than half an hour.

Dr. Helm Is Exonerated.

Frankfort, Ky., April 12.—Dr. S. F. Helm, superintendent, and attendants of the Institute for Feeble-Minded Children here, were completely exonerated by the State Board of Control of mistreatment of Albert Bell, of Bellevue, the 10-year-old child, who died at the institute February 21. His mother charged that his body, when she received it, bore evidences of abuse, and an investigation was held by the board, which is of the opinion that the discolorations were due to post-mortem changes, and reviewed the whole evidence in its opinion.

Walked Into Matrimony.

Miss Maud Pyle, Hopkinsville, Ky., sent a deputy to confer with reporters Wednesday afternoon on ways and means of keeping her marriage a secret.

"She's afraid people will think it a runaway but it was only a walkout," explained the deputy. "She just left home, telling her folks she was going down town to shop." Wherefore?

It came about that she met F. J. Stinnett, of Madisonville, at the Madisonville depot, and they came on to Indiana and were married by Justice J. L. Taylor Wednesday afternoon.—Evansville Courier.

JUDGE ASKS INDICTMENTS

Instructions to Calloway Co. Grand Jury Demand Guilty Be Punished.

Paducah, Ky., April 12.—Judge Charles H. Bush, in his instructions to the Calloway county grand jury at Murray Monday, called attention to the mob that formed at Murray following the transfer of Lube Martin, negro, to Paducah for safe-keeping, demanding his return to Murray, calling upon the jurors to "indict the guilty parties." That part of Judge Bush's instructions dealing with the mob follows:

"I consider it my duty as a man and officer to speak to you about a most unfortunate affair. I profoundly regret to feel called upon to mention it. In fact, I would prefer that it be buried in the sea of everlasting forgetfulness. Of course, I refer to that inexcusable exhibition of lawlessness that took place in this town on January 10.

"This is the first grand jury that has been impaneled in Calloway county since that occasion, and hence I present this matter to you, and will tell you plainly what is your duty in the premises. This court had performed a judicial act, prompted only by an earnest desire to do his duty and to save human life, as he conscientiously believed, by ordering a prisoner to be transferred to the jail of another county. This was the head and front of his offending, provoking a storm of indignation which found expression in an organized band of men, composed of at least 1,000 noisy and boisterous persons, who, with their leaders, packed the court house and thronged the streets, interfering with and temporarily suspending the business of the court, denouncing the court, threatening to hang the judge, crying out in the most angry manner: 'Shoot him! Hang him!'

APPEALS VAIN.

"The Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney tried to appeal to the mob to keep quiet while they could explain why Lube Martin was sent away, but their appeals were in vain. The infuriated crowd only grew worse. The Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney, having no protection, and seeing that it was useless to try to remain in the court house at that time, left for their hotel. The Judge was followed by the mob, and the unlawful, riotous assembly surrounded the hotel and collected in large numbers in front of the hotel, constantly threatening the life of the Judge, and sending their leaders to him, making certain demands, accompanied with threats of death if he did not yield.

"It is proper that I should say to you that the Judge never yielded to a mob leader nor made any concessions to one, in spite of statements that have been made to the contrary by some who were not present during that most trying ordeal. Good men and women know that the Judge said to the last that he would die before he would surrender the prisoner to a mob. The news was then brought to the court that they were preparing to enter the hotel and were threatening to blow it up, and it was urged by good people that there was probability of much bloodshed."

PRAYER MEETINGS.

Four more interesting prayer services were held in the Canton street neighborhood in the interest of the Life revival with Mrs. Coleman, West 18th street, led by Mrs. Carloss, subject, "Faith;" with Mrs. Gardner, High street, subject, "Praise," led by Mrs. L. T. Jenkins; with Mrs. Faulkner, West 17th street, subject, "Gideon's Selected Army," led by Mrs. Jenkins. We had the unexpected pleasure of Bro. Walters' company. He gave us a helpful talk with a special prayer by request for our nation and our soldiers. The next was with Mrs. T. J. Farrell, Canton and 17th streets, subject, "Music as a Soul Winner," led by Mrs. Jenkins, with special music of the Edison Diamond Disc, "Joy to the World" and "Lead Kindly Light." The next meeting will be Tuesday morning with Mrs. Andy McGee, West 17th street, led by Mrs. Puley, subject, "He is Risen." The neighborhood is invited. In all the above a special present. All took some part.

A Royal Command.

A wireless station capable of receiving messages from Germany was found on the roof of the home of Mrs. Hugo Reisinger in New York. Thereby hangs, possibly, the tale of how Ambassador von Bernstorff received his wireless messages every morning from Wilhelmstrasse, not via Tuckertown or Sayville, prior to the breaking off of relations between this country and Germany. Secret Service officers knew of the messages, but could not at the time discover the receiving station.

New York dispatches speak of the late Hugo Reisinger as a "millionaire art collector," at whose home many German noblemen and diplomats were entertained. The home of the Reisingers was a $900,000 Fifth avenue residence, a gift from Mrs. Reisinger's father, Adolph Busch, of St. Louis.

Mr. Reisinger died about a year after the war with Germany began.

Some of us who live nearer St. Louis than New York remember more or less vaguely that the news of the marriage of Miss Busch, of St. Louis, heiress of the multimillionaire brewer, was not wholly satisfactory to her father because the bridegroom was a German army officer, a lieutenant, who had no fortune. Mr. Reisinger was a dashing lover. He did not carry his bride away upon the pommel of his saddle, like a knight of old, but he did take her to dinner in East St. Louis, hoping to persuade a prospective father-in-law to withdraw objections to the match in view of the gossip of an engagement that was sure to follow the appearance of the young couple together at dinner informally. The story was merely a tale of a lover's plot to force the hand of an objecting father of the girl. The point in the present connection is that the young man was described as a moneyless German officer. Mr. Busch granted forgiveness and a father's blessing and bestowed, as the sequel shows, a $900,000 New York home on the bride. Did the bridegroom then become an art collector? If so he could afford it in the circumstances existing.

Was the occupation of Mr. Reisinger assumed as a ruse to hide more important activities of an agent of the Kaiser in the United States at a time when the German Empire was preparing for "The Day?" Yes, it might have been, so far-reaching were the plans made by Germany in advance of the inauguration of war. Was the $900,000 New York home the setting for a gilded Kaiserist junta? It might have been, even if Mrs. Reisinger was innocent of participation. She says she was innocent of knowledge that the wireless plant was operated on her roof.

The Reisingers entertained Count von Bernstorff, a German plotter accredited to Washington as Ambassador and Privy Counsellor. Heinrich Albert, who had secret business in the United States, and many others whose activities were a part of the Kaiserist intrigues in the United States. How could a representative of the Kaiser be better situated in America than as the husband of a fabulously rich American wife? "Would it be beyond the conception of Kaiserism to send a dashing young officer to the United States, directing him to marry the richest German-American girl—the name and address known in Potsdam Palace—and await further orders?"

If Mr. Reisinger's entire experience in America was the execution of command of his Emperor it was royal assignment in two senses—term.—Courier-Journal.

Loyal But Indiscreet.

Toledo, O., April 12.—Clayton Schuster, letter carrier who was charged for alleged pro-German utterance, enlisted tonight in the Sixth regiment, Ohio National Guard. Schuster's antecedents fought in the Revolutionary War. His discharge as a letter carrier was ordered by the Postoffice Department after affidavits had been obtained to the effect that Schuster told his patrons he was going to quit his job and fight for Germany.
